Kerry Group is a leader in the global food industry. They develop, produce and market lifestyle and nutritional foods, flavours and ingredients, meeting today's consumer demands for healthy, convenient, tasteful food and beverages. Every year since 2002, Kerry Group asks Hughenden to run sessions on Supply Chain Planning and Project Management for their Graduates Development Programme.

Q: What do the Graduates get from the Hughenden intervention?

A: "Looking at the feedback, it is obvious that the delegates trust your level of knowledge in the Supply Chain Planning subject. Interestingly, most of the Graduates commented that they thought Supply Chain would be the least exciting subject of their Development Programme. However, after your session, they all said their perception of the subject had changed and they realised now how important Supply Chain was for the business, no matter what functional area you are in."

Q: Why Hughenden?

A: "For me, it is the quality of your delivery. The feedback has consistently been excellent and we know that we can rely on you. On top of that, you worked with us operationally as well, which is quite unusual, so you know the business very well."

Q: How would you describe the Hughenden style and way of working?

A: "Very professional. You put a lot of effort into the preparation beforehand - which keeps us on our toes! - and you always deliver exactly what you said you would."

Q: How does this collaboration with Hughenden compare to other experiences with education, training or consultancy suppliers?

A: "The fact that you are experts in your field, and prepared to deliver exactly what we need, makes a big difference. We generally go on recommendations from other parts of the business and we pay a lot of attention to the feedback from the delegates from one year to the next. Did you know that we actually dropped a trainer as a result of the Graduates comparing him to the Hughenden standard? You set the bar very high and have become a benchmark!"
